Editorial Review

From Booklist

Schreiber takes on werewolves with the same light, romantic emphasis of her Vampire Kisses titles. The Full Moon series follows the misadventures of Celeste and Brandon, star-crossed lovers from different social sets. In the second title, Magic of the Moonlight (2011), high-school student Celeste realized that she was in love with gorgeous Brandon, despite his address and lycanthropic tendencies. Brandon's scientist father came up with an antidote to cure his son, but both teens were ambivalent about his taking it, relishing the physicality of the werewolf form. Full Moon Kisses pits Celeste and Brandon against a neighboring werewolf pack intent on turning Celeste into a werewolf as a mate for the attractive bad-boy leader. There's very little subtlety, character development, or gore in this series, but that's exactly what will attract readers. It's comfort food, formulaic and dependable, and for middle-school paranormal romance readers, it's irresistible. The cover photo of a young blonde girl with slightly parted lips and silhouettes of tree limbs perfectly communicates the content: this is a girl's romantic fantasy. It's really not about the werewolf! Grades 7-10. -Debbie Carton

From the Back Cover

Beware of the full moon.

A werewolf wants to take you into his world—forever. . . .

Celeste and Brandon know that Nash in werewolf form is bad news for them. And as Nash and Brandon continue to deal with their rivalry, their competing affections for Celeste, and their struggles with their werewolf identities, a vague new prediction from psychic Dr. Meadows has Celeste wondering: which of them wants to turn her into a werewolf? Plus, there are unanticipated dilemmas—if Brandon's Dad's cure really does work, is he willing to give up being a werewolf for good? And is Celeste willing to give up her heroic werewolf boyfriend? And when Nash finds out there's a cure, will he try to take it from Brandon?

Then things grow still more complicated when a gang of sketchy guys from a neighboring town comes to Legend's Run for the big Werewolf Festival. It seems they're in search of a girl to add to their pack, and they've set their sights on Celeste.
